The process of building concrete stairs with metal beams is a multi-step operation that requires skill, precision, and patience. In the first step, a slab of concrete is laid down as the foundation of the stairs, and metal forms are installed to create two channels on either side. Then, a pair of metal beams is positioned in the channels and bolted securely into place. Next, to ensure that the stair treads are evenly spaced and fully supported by the metal beams below. Once all of the steps have been installed, they are coated with a hardy layer of cement to create a durable surface capable of lasting for years to come.

Stair railings are an essential safety feature for any stairway. They serve to provide support and structure, helping to prevent falls and other accidents on the stairs. Our metal railings leave the facility with a primer that can be painted to match any color. They improve the aesthetic of a staircase, adding elegance and sophistication to even the most basic of designs. Whether you are looking for a simple design made from metal or something more elaborate that incorporates other decorative elements, stair railings can help make your home safer as well as more beautiful.
